MY GRANDFATHER'S MILL.

BY MRS, BETTIE J. MCKOY, FORMERLY OF DOVEP, KY.

> My Grandfather's mill, At the foot of the hill. Has stood for many a year, And ground out the corn, At evening and morn, For people who lived far and near.

Twas a wonder to me, In my childhood, to see The ponderous structureso high, When I climbed to the top,
With a skip and a hop.
I thought I was "most to the sky."

Full many a day, 1've spent there, at play; And down by the window I'd kneel; With eyes shining bright, I'd watch with delight, The water pour over the wheel.

The meal and the flour Came down in a shower,
As pure as the snow, and as white;
The wheels' busy whirr
Kept the miller astir,
From morning till late in the night.

And when it grew late. He'd open the flood gate, And the water would dance on its way; It had worked with a will, In turning the mill, And now it was ready for play.

'Twas a beautiful sight, In the clear moonlight, To see the miniature fall, The water went dashing, And flashing and splashing, Then flowed by the old garden wall.

Many years have now passed, Since the wheel turned its last, And Grandfather's gone to his rest; But the sturdy old mill Is standing there still, In mosses and spider-webs dressed.

The race is now dry;
The water-wheel high
Is broken and gone to decay; The hopper is bare; I can not find there The scales were we used to weigh.

The mill has looked down, Withoute'er a frown. On four generations below, Since it was first planned Near three score and ten years ago.

Fond memories still Cling round the old mill, From the roof to the foundation stone: Though useless and old, No stranger so bold As to touch e'en the moss on its gown.

Guitean Weakening.

Chicago Tribune.

Guiteau, according to Deputy Warden Ross, who has charge of him is weakening. Warden Ross, being asked how his prisoner was, said:

"Guiteau is not so well as he has been. He weakened a great deal last week." "From what cause?"

"It was the interview in some Chicago newspaper in which Scoville said he was willing Guiteau should be sacrificed if thereby public attention would be called to the necessity for reform in the law relating to insane criminals."

"Guiteau now reminds me," said his hanging of Modoc Captain Jack. As the noose was about to be put about his neck | and said : Capt. Jack said: 'Don't hang me. Hang Scar-faced Charley.' That is just the way with Guiteau. He has no objection to legislation on the subject of insanity, but he does not want to be hung-at any rate, not as an example of the deficiences of the law. He is quite willing that Scoville or anybody else shall be hung. Indeed, he said so the other day. In a paroxysm of fear he cried out to one of the guards, try can spare him better than it can spare sheet." me!' "

Guiteau into a fever, and he has had the to have outdoor employment. sulks ever since. He is well. His appeout a cent, I beat the railroad for the passage, and I have not a cent now.' Guiteau was greatly interested in the tramp's story. His experience in beating a rail-road company seemed to recall pleasant memories to Guiteau, and when the tramp left Gniteau did not ask him to buy a photograph or an autograph, but gave him a half dollar, and said that he hoped that would help to get a good square meal. This is the first visitor Guiteau has had who was not invited to purchase something."

"Do you think Guiteau will break down on his way to the scaffold?" his keeper was asked.

"I think that he will break drown then, and before that time. He is breaking down now. My impression is that, as soon as the court in banc decides against him, he will break down entirely, and I think he will probably die of inanition before the day set for his execution arrives."

The Coming Republican War. Philadelphia Times.

There are two great lions in the Stalwart path—the dead Garfield and the living Blaine. The memory of Garfiell could be successfully clouded with the party organs and party machinery, but Blaine is a Stalwart foe before whom the bravest Starlwarts cower, and he is wily as he is brave and powerful. He dines with Arthur and Arthur dines with him, but neither is deceived by the other. Both know that soon, at the latest, they must lock horns for a struggle from which both cannot emerge with political life, and Arthur, with all his patronage and organs, and machinery, trembles when he contemplates the conflict. It is Blaine that Arthur fears, and it is the fear of Blaine that makes the hitherto bold and confessedly sagacious Arthur take his steps with a degree of caution that is freely condemned as cowardice. Blaine has no lines of retreat in his strategy. He can not force the battle, for it must come from Arthur, but when it does come, as it must, he will welcome it. He is ready row; he has been ready since the day Garfield died, and he will patiently await the Stalwart assault that must come in time and that may come any day, and when it does come, Blaine will be to Arthur's administration what Clay was to Tyler's; what Douglas was to Buchanan's, and what Stevens was to Johnson's. It may or may not make Blaine President, but it will leave Arthur's administration a hopeless wreck. Blaine is the confessed representative of the policy of the late President Garfield and the issue as accepted by the Nation is a direct issue between a better Republican rule and a combination of spoilsmen. Such an issue, with Blaine's matchless ability and magnetism to inspire the popular side can mean but one result-the overthrow of Arthur and the mastery of Blaine.

Balancing the Books.

At the end of last year, when an Ohio Warden, "of the story connected with the bank cashier could not make his books balance, the president sat down with him

> "Mr. Symonds, it is evident that you have made a clerical error somewhere.' "But I have verified my figures over > and over again," protested the cashier. "Just so, but yet you have overlooked the error. According to your books this bank is $700 22 short?"

"Yes, sir."

"According to my private memoranda you are a $400 trotting horse and a $300 'Why don't they hang Scoville and let me diamond pin ahead, while the rats probago? FELEGANT EASTER CARDS, AT

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

FBIDAY EVE., MARCH 24, 1882.

THE Ripley Republicans will hold their primary election next Saturday.

THE river is falling at Vicksburg and also all along the Yazoo, Sunflower and Tallahatchie Rivers.

THE Democrats of Rhode Island have nominated a State ticket headed by Horace A. Kimball for Governor.

THE indications are that the admission of Dakota to the Union will become a party question, with Democrats solidly opposed:

THE Pond Bill has been referred to the Judiciary Committee of the Ohio House, in order that the brewers of the State may be heard on it.

THE President has issued a formal order disapproving the sentence of the Court-Martial in the Whittaker case, and ordered his dismissal from arrest.

THE proposition to appoint a Board of Arbitration to which shall be referred all disputed matters relating to labor and wages in Cincinnati is favorably received by the classes most interested.

THREE hundred reports from various sections of Indiana indicate that more acres have been sown in wheat than last year, and that the present condition of the crop is fully twenty per cent. above that of an cided by cutting his throat. average year.

ALL over the country there are signs of discontent among the workingmen. Yet, the Republicans in Congress have just resolved in caucus to wring one hundred millions annually from the wages of labor Garfield's Arm Around Dersey's Neck. above what is needed for the support of the government.

THE Ripley Bee says: Jordan Brown made a lot of half barrels for Col. Gus. Simmon's celebrated medical water, last "You know, of course, that ex-Senitor week. We are glad to learn that the Col. Dorsey was very active in the Presidential is finding a ready sale for this water. As a cure for dyspepsia it has no equal. Any of our citizens wanting to try its qualities can be supplied by sending their orders to the Colonel, on the steamer Morning Mail, or to Aberdeen, O.

SHIPHERD, the witness before the U.S. House Foreign Affairs Committee, said that but one person holding an office under the Government had taken a fee from the company, and that was the Collector of the Port of New York, Wm. H. Robertson, who had been paid a fee for services rendered the company in the capacity of attorney. Collector Robertson declines to make any statement regarding the matter until he has seen a full report of the proceedings.

The uneasiness among various classes of workingmen is increasing. In Lawrence, Mass., a reduction of wages has produced a formidable strike. In Fall River the operatives are preparing for a similar movement. The iron-moulders in Troy, New York, have made a demand for a twenty-five per cent. increase in certain grades of work, which has been refused. In Boston there is a strike of the Western Union Telegraph Messenger boys. The gold-beaters of Philadelphia, to the number of two hundred and fifty are on a strike. In the Cumberland Mining regions of Pennsylvania the strike still continues. There is much distress among the anthracite miners on account of the reduction of working time. It is to be observed that nearly all these labor movements have their origin in the so-called "protected" industries, or among the employes of monopolies.

Washington Post.

A gentleman who has been in a position to become thoroughly acquainted with several of the private transactions of the last Administration unburdened his mind of one incident last night. He said: campaign. You may also have heard that he was credited with carrying the State of Indiana. Well, Gen. Garfield and Dorsey were always warm friends, and when the first noise was made about indictments Dorsey came to Washington and went directly to the White House. He wanted to know just what was going to be donewhether the friends who helped to elect the administration were going to be prosecuted or let alone. Gen. Garfield told his visitor to be easy in his mind, to go back to his ranche in New Mexico, be patient, and no harm would come to him.

"Dorsey acted on his advice, but after a time there was so much newspaper talk about the prosecutions and contemplated indictments that he became scared, left his ranch, and came on again to Washington. He went to the President and said: 'This thing is worrying me terribly. My wife is suffering agonies. I want to know once for all what this thing amounts to.'

"The President got up, and in his usual demonstrative manner, placed his arm around Dorsey and said: 'Now, old fellow I will show you my friendship in this matter. You go back to your rooms at the Riggs and wait for a friend of mine whom I will send to you.' Dorsey went to his room. Gen. Garfield then sent for Mr. MacVeagh, and asked to have all the papers and memoranda of evidence against Dorsey sent to him for his own inspection. Mr. MacVeagh handed him the papers, as requested, and an hour afterward one of the President's private secretaries carried the documents to Dorsey's room at the Riggs House and allowed him to examine them thoroughly. Dorsey made careful notes, and, knowing all that the Government prosecution had againist him, has been thoroughly prepared for his defence ever since."

Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters.

Frazier's Root Bitters are not a drain-shop whisky beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowers open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotcles, scrotulous humors and sores, tetter, ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from Weakness or debility caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as I ever did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest blessings.

OPENING THE CAR WINDOW.

The Experience a Gallant Man Goes Through in the Effort.

Burdette: Maybe a man feels happy and proud and flattered and envied and blessed among men when he sees a pretty girl trying to raise a window on a railway car, and he jumps up and gets in ahead of the other boys and says, "Oh, if you please; I would be so glad," and the other male passengers turn green with envy, and he leans over the back of the seat and tackles the window in a knowing way with one hand, as if peradventure he may toss it airily with a simple turn of the wrist, but it kind of holds on, and he takes hold with both hands, but it sort of doesn't let go to any alarming extent, and then he pounds it with his fist, but it only seems to settle a "leetle closer into place," and then he comes around and she gets out of the seat to give him a fair chance, and he grapples that window and bows up his back, and tugs and pulls and sweats and strains, and his hat falls off, and his suspender buttons fetch loose, and his vest buckle parts, and his face gets red, and his feet slip, and people laugh, and irreverent young men in remote seats grunt and groan every time he lifts, and cry out, "Now, then, all together," as if in mockery, and he bursts his collar at the forward buiton, and the pretty young lady, vexed at having been made so conspictious, says, in her iciest manner, "Oh, never mind, thank you; it doesn't make any difference," and then calmly goes away and sits down in another seat, and that wearied man gathers himself together and reads a book upside down -oh! doesn't he feel good, just? Maybe he isn't happy, but if you think he isn't, don't be fool enough to extend any of your sympathy. He doesn't want it.

Awful Wild Behind.

A lady of Milwaukee has twin sons of whom she is very proud, both being handsome, sprightly, and precociously smart little fellows.

A short time, ago, a gentleman sent the lads a pair of "Colorado jacks," which of course, tickled their fancies immensely, after they had learned the important lesson of non-interference with the business end of the animals. One of the boys was giving a glowing description of the pets, which led to the query:

"Are your jacks gentle, Frank?" "Well, yes, ma'am," said Frank. "They are awful tame in front, but you bet they're awful wild behind."

Chicago Times New York special: Irene Woodward is the name of a tattooed woman who will make her first appearance on Monday morning at a museum here. She is nineteen years old and has never been exhibited. She says that she has spent most of her life in a settler's wagon with her father and brothers. In order not to lose her, her father tattooed a spool on her arm. The process was painful, but she liked the result so well that she urged him to tattoo her more. During the next six years, in his idle moments, he tattooed her entire body with skill and taste. There are representations of insects, animals, men and women, flags, shields, mottoes and many other things.

BATCHELDER'S Ventilated Egg

Patented February 15, 1881. Indispensible to Merchants Shippers

And Producers.

PRACTICAL The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, addling, or brekage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.
